ABOUT THE COMPANY

Travelable, founded in 2018 by Sarah Marshall, is a full-service travel agency committed to making the world accessible, one extraordinary vacation at a time. Our agents know exactly what it's like to travel the globe with autism, feeding tubes, oxygen, ADHD, sensory processing disorder and so many other challenges.

We will draw on this extensive travel experience to show you what's possible for your family. As certified Autism Travel Professionals and Accessible Travel Advocates, we will support you through the entire travel planning process, guiding you to the destinations and properties we know can support your family.

In 2019-2020, TravelAble served 72 families with international and domestic vacations.

We are destination experts: We have lived in Europe, the Middle East, and the US, so we are experts in finding the places locals go! We are also certified specialists in Australia, Hawaii, and so many more!

We are experienced and customized: Tell us about your family's unique needs and requirements. We'll work together to make your trip fit your family perfectly!

We get you: We understand your anxieties, your fears, and your desires for a successful trip. Let us use our experience to make the trip extraordinary.

ABOUT SARAH

Sarah Marshall, autism mom and trained travel professional, is the founder of TravelAble.

In 2009, her journey was redefined by the very premature birth of her son while stationed in the Middle East. This experience, and the subsequent navigation through medical and cognitive diagnoses and challenges, taught her and her family first-hand the trials and tribulations of traveling while caring for their son. From that first adventure, her family never stopped exploring the world. And after many trips where tears turned to smiles, she set out on a mission to give every family, regardless of need, a chance to experience this kind of transformation through custom designed extraordinary vacations!

She is also a sought-after speaker on autism adventure, presenting around the country on her secrets to travel success. In 2020, she will be presenting in Los Angeles, Chicago, and Phoenix at the Abilities Expo, a national disability resource expo. She also gives pro bono presentations to societies, therapy centers, parent universities, and other community gatherings, and has a partnership with the ALS Association of WI, IL, and the Autism Hero Project.

She currently holds specialization as a Certified Autism Travel Professional (IBCCES) and Certified Accessible Travel Advocate (SNG). She is also a proud member of Cruise Lines International Association (CLIA), the American Society of Travel Agents (ASTA) and the Family Travel Association (FTA).

SALES FIGURES

As COVID-19 affected the global travel industry in 2020, it is hard to judge sales figures, but based on what I sold, here are my sales figures to date:

- Jun – Dec 2018 $15, 652.48
- Jan – Dec 2019 $57, 443.42
- Jan – Dec 2020 $104, 285.34

Our 2020 plans include expanding our agent base to amplify our sales numbers for 2021.

"I met Sarah at an Abilities Expo in Chicago. I could tell right away she had a passion for helping people with disabilities. So, when it came time for me and my family to plan a trip, I knew right away who I needed to call. Sarah did an amazing amount of pre-work. She listened to my concerns and put together a great trip tailored to my needs. During the trip, she was always available and responsive to us when we ran into questions or concerns. Her contacts were great and transitions seamless. We had a fantastic trip! Thank you, Sarah!"
